DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The last paragraph of claim 10 is overly wordy and confusing.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Claims 1, 2, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Wagner (5,450,835).

Claims 1, 2, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Kitano et al (6,591,820). See Figure 8.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wagner (5,450,835) or Kitano et al (6,591,820) in view of Hoshiba et al (6,152,119). Wagner or Kitano et al show everything except utilizing the device in a watercraft, wherein at least part of the air intake system is on one side of the engine body and the oil separator is on the other side. Hoshiba et al teach that it is old in the art to utilize an oil separator, wherein at least part of the air intake system is on one side of the engine body and the oil separator is on the other side. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify Wagner or Kitano et al by employing the oil separator device of each reference in a watercraft, wherein at least part of the air intake system is on one side of the engine body and the oil separator is on the other side, in order to provide improved engine efficiency without taking up too much room.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-7 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
